

Hero of Epic Flight Visits U. S.

BRITISH ACE

arrives. Sir Alan Cobham (inset), who made London to Australia flight, arrived here yesterday. Photo shows Sir Alan's tiny hydroplane being lowered from Homeric.

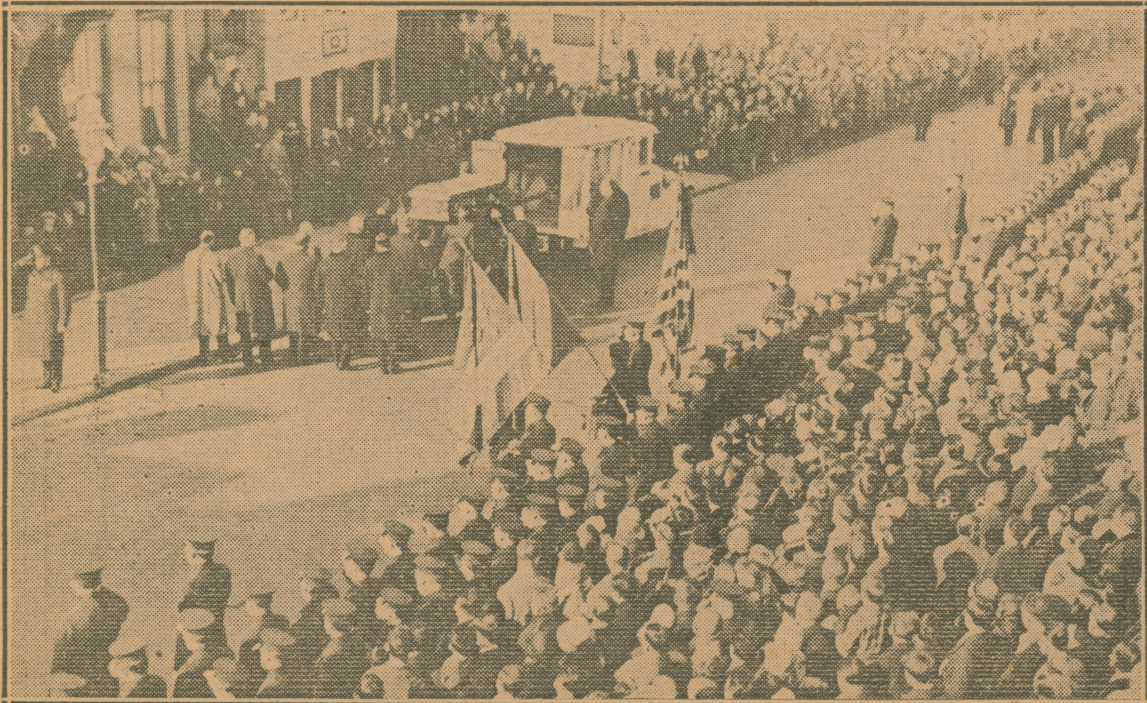

DEAD SHOT. This odd looking weapon never misses, according to the inventor. It consists of an ordinary revolver with a flashlight attached so as to throw light on the target. New York police may adopt it to fight crime. (Photo Graphic.)

SALM RETURNS.

Count Ludwig von Hoogstraeten, husband of the former Millicent Rogers, Standard Oil heiress, arrived yesterday to attend separation suit pending between himself and the countess. (Photo Graphic.)

HERO POLICEMAN BURIED

Highest police honors and solemn church rites featured funeral yesterday of Patrolman Frank A. Daszkiewicz, slain by gunmen. Photo shows crowds that paid tribute as casket was borne on its way. (Photo Graphic.)

Smiles Despite Troubles

ALL DRESSED UP and some place to go, these four merry members (shown above) were doing their share in making the annual outing of the Western Slope Regular Democratic Club of Jersey City, N. J., a real Thanksgiving festival yesterday. (Graphic.)
